A NOTE ABOUT CLASSES

CLASS I, J, K: Due to an increasing number of Javelins attending our show, we recently modified the classes. We retained class I for 2-seater AMX and class J for Javelin, but we formed a new class for cars with the AMX package (see Class K). If you register a 1971-74 Javelin, please specify if it's a Javelin AMX so we can classify your car correctly.

CLASS N & O: Sometimes a Class N or O car is easily identifiable. A Javelin with racing slicks and a blower sticking out of the hood is one example. But for other than extreme modifications, we don't pay much attention to placing the muscle-type cars into Class N. Most just remain in their classes of I, J, K, or P.

In the case of the "bread-and-butter" AMC or Rambler cars, however, many owners take great pains to keep their cars either original or restored to original condition. We're talking about classes A-E, G-H, L-M, and Q-S. To be fair and to make Peer Choice judging work, we pay close attention to modifications made for appearance and performance. To that end, we've come up with a simple phrase to gauge whether your car should be placed in a stock class. Look at your car and ask, "Will my changes affect peer judging?" For example, if the changes include installing disc brakes, seatbelts, larger radiator, radial tires, or changing the car's color from red to blue, peer judging should not be affected. If the changes include mag wheels on your "breadbox" American, all chromed accessories under the hood, Cordoba crushed velour interior, a red / white / blue or mural paint job, or traction bars and racing tires on a 1965 Ambassador, your car will be placed in Class O (if it's a Rambler) or N (if it's any other AMC).

Installing accessories available at the time of manufacture are ok, whether they influence peer judging or not. Adding a tissue dispenser or installing tilt wheel, AM/FM, or spoked wheel covers to a post-'63 car are some examples. Stuffing any V8 in a pre-'66 American is considered Class O, no matter which engine is installed, since no V8 Americans were produced by AMC before 1966.
